KITCHEN INSPIRATION

A collection of distinctly personal kitchens defined by rich colour, tactile materials and restorative garden connections.

01, 02 Albany Road Residence by Studio Four Contained within the 1965 Guilford Bell-designed Santosa building, this replanned apartment is a contemporary tribute to its original architect. The thoughtful unstitching of a previously segmented layout has established a fluid plan with abundant natural light. A restrained material palette of muted concrete and pale timber is paired with rectilinear forms in homage to the symmetry and order of Bell's architecture. The design team's careful work has allowed garden vistas to serve as a backdrop in the kitchen, while full-height curtains can be used to create a more intimate setting. Fluted timber joinery mirrors the folds of these draping curtains. The end result has found harmony between the modernised apartment and its historical architectural shell.
